Class Description

■ Web Page Design 1

This course introduces students to the Internet and World Wide Web. Students will study the history of the Internet, search engines, Web design process, Web hosting services, color theory, graphics, and Web publishing. Students learn how to develop Web sites using Hypertext Markup Language version 5 (HTML5) and Cascading Style Sheets (CSS). Students learn to write code manually, use graphical user interface (GUI) authoring tools, insert optimized images, create hyperlinks, add tables, and create layouts for class portfolios. A final individual team project is due at the end of the school year.

■ Web Page Design 2

In this course students continue to learn how to develop Web sites using Hypertext Markup Language version 5 (HTML5) and Cascading Style Sheets (CSS). Students continue to learn and practice writing advanced code manually, use graphical user interface (GUI) authoring tools, create optimized images, create hyperlinks, add tables, forms, video, and audio to Web pages. Students also learn JavaScript and jQuery. Other topics include recognizing the importance of search engine optimization (SEO), color theory, typography, and implementing responsive web design (RWD). Throughout the course, students learn how Web sites are developed. A final individual project is due at the end of the school year. We also compete in the Career Skills Challenge in Fresno.

Mary Shelley's FRANKENSTEIN

A DARK TALE ABOUT

- Home
- Legend

- Resources

Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein" is a story that will stand the test of time. The plot, in short, is a tale of revenge and how the rejection of society creates horrific effects. A common misconception is that the monster is named Frankenstein but in reality the mad scientist, who creates the iconic monster, is named Victor Frankenstein while the monster has no real name, only referred to as the creature or monster. Shelley wrote Frankenstein because of a bet she had with a couple of friends one summer while staying at the house of Lord Byron in Geneva on who could write the scariest ghost story. Mary had to publish the book anonymously three times before becoming official recognized as the true author of on the best English novels of all time.

I personally chose the book Frankenstein as my topic because I read it this year with my class in Mr. Lucero's English class. The storyline was still fresh in my mind and when the words "legends project" resonated through my mind and I came to an epiphany that I should do the project on the book itself. Everyone knows the creature's look from Halloween and the typical monster of horrifying spectacle and the novel itself is legendary as well so it made met the perfect criteria as a topic for the legends project. I think everyone should take the time to thoroughly read the book and experience the feelings of betrayal, revenge, and disparity, things that a movie or film will simply not suffice.

Mermaids

My partner and J. Andrea Ramos, picked the legend about Mermaids, not only because they had an amazing color scheme, but because they always have been a mysterious creature. Mermaids have been a delirious topic for over years. They have been in movies, documentaries.
